

THE COMMITTEE OF 100

FYI

April 14, 2014

Economic Development and Leadership Workshops Coming Up

Now in its 16th year, the EDiS Institute returns next month in a new format, following two economic development events scheduled for the last two weeks of April. All are being supported by Committee of 100 members.

First up, next week, is the Delaware Economic Development Summit to be held from 8 to 10am on April 24 at the brand new Wilmington Westin Hotel on the Riverfront. Sponsored by the Philadelphia Urban Land Institute, the two-hour workshop will focus on the corporate commitments that are enabling the state to emerge from the recession. The keynote speaker will be former Pittsburgh mayor, Tom Murphy, and the program will feature a panel of Delaware business leaders, headed by DEDO Director Alan Levin. For more information and to register follow this link: ULI-Delaware Summit

Next, beginning on April 29 and running through Friday, May 2, is the Delaware Economic Summit which will also be held at the new Westin Hotel on the Riverfront. Throughout the week, the Delaware Economic Summit will host sixteen educational sessions, four keynote lunch speakers and 1 happy hour. Major speakers include DEDO Secretary Alan Levin and Sam Calagione of Dogfish Head Brewery. According to the sponsors, the mission for this Summit is to create an exciting and engaging event by providing an outlet for Delawareans to learn and discuss financially related topics with local experts. This is the first forum of its kind in Delaware, presented by the private sector, in an effort to offer relevant education to fellow business owners and consumers. Follow the link Deleconsummit.com to learn more about the expansive program and to register.

Finally, on May 9, the 2014 EDiS Institute Leadercast will be held at the DoubleTree Hotel at 8th & King from 8:00am to 5:00pm. The EDiS Institute continues its 16-year commitment to raise funds in support of vocational education. This popular biannual event encourages and inspires leadership in the community and workplace. It is attended by business and community leaders, elected and appointed officials and vocational students. This year's theme is "Be a Leader Worth Following," addressing the qualities a leader must possess to be successful.

In 2014, the EDiS Institute is partnering with Leadercast to offer the attendees a broad range of high profile speakers, among them, Archbishop Desmond Tutu, former First Lady, Laura Bush and best-selling author Malcolm Gladwell. The event, simulcast live from Atlanta, Georgia promotes a mission to build leaders for the future.

Find out more and register at:
EDiSCompany.com/leadercast

OR

Jennifer at (800)995-EDiS
jfredericksen@ediscompany.com

---