Virtual Lab Roundtable

March 10, 2021
8:30 a.m. - 10:00 a.m.

Update on Increasing Lab Space in Delaware

Join us on March 10 for our next Lab Roundtable to learn about a new pilot grant program designed to spur private sector-led projects that will help Delaware attract and retain science and tech companies by expanding inventory of ready-to-go lab space.

The Delaware Prosperity Partnership will share details of the program, additional funding in the Governor's recommended FY22 budget, and insights into what types of space growing companies are seeking. We'll also provide a preview of lab facilities under development.

There is no cost to participate, but registration is required to receive the Zoom link to join the meeting.

March Virtual Meeting

March 16, 2021

5:30 p.m. - 7:00 p.m. Guest Speaker

Patrick Callahan

CEO, CompassRed

Co-Founder, Delaware Data Innovation Lab

Chair, Science & Tech Advisors

Patrick Callahan will share details about the Delaware Data Innovation Lab (DDIL) and the Science & Tech Advisors, two organizations that were recently created to support and grow Delaware's innovation economy. .

DDIL and its team of 22 “labsters” is already helping community partners use data analytics, artificial intelligence and augmented reality to “see” data and uncover solutions that will address COVID-19 and other pressing problems.

The Science & Tech Advisors include representatives from Delaware's top tech companies, industry organizations, institutions of higher education and state government. It is focused on being more intentional and strategic about advancing Delaware’s statewide scientific and technological innovation economy.

There is no cost to participate, but registration is required to receive the Zoom link to join the meeting.
